

Visitors can hike around the park or take in the sights on horseback. Many start the day at Sunrise Point and end it at Sunset Point. Can you guess why?

The Queens Garden Trail is a popular hike.

Chapter 1

Rocks That Rock

Millions of years ago, this area was just flat rocks.

Over many years, natural forces like wind and water wore away the rock. The flat landscape was turned into the open areas and tall rocky towers we see today in Bryce.

Field Guide

Here are some of the amazing animals that live in Bryce Canyon National Park.

pronghorn deer

peregrine falcon

willow flycatcher

Utah prairie dog

Great Basin rattlesnake

tiger salamander

California condor

mule deer

North American porcupine

mountain lion

The park is home to more than 1,000 different types of bugs.

Wildlife by the Numbers

The park is home to about...

175 types of birds

59 types of mammals

15 types of reptiles and amphibians

0 native fish species